

MADAME STEINHEIL KEEPS FIGHTING ON

Papers Scoring Tribunal for Not Delving Deep Into Alleged Scandal.

about the contradictions in her own story on the occasion of her former examinations. She weeps softly for a moment, then raises her hands above her head and cries:

"I was forced to lie. They made me say what they wished. I am like a hunted beast."

All this affects the jury, despite the occasional warning of de Valles to them that they must not let their feelings sway them. To the casual observer and to the French public generally the acquittal of the woman seems a certainty. Not because they think her innocent, for there are few who think that, but because of the profound pity which her fight inspires.

It has been said that Madame Steinheil aspired to become a second Pompadour, a woman ruling France through her lovers. In all her political intrigues she has never shown the brilliant cleverness of a Pompadour as she displays it in her unequal battle in the Palais Justice today.

Makes Friends.

And her cleverness and courage are winning. Even those who believe her guilty are aroused by her courage and by the overwhelming odds against which she battles.

The French public, though, is noting the excessively severe, inquisitorial methods of de Valles rather as an indication of kindness toward the prisoner. It is often the case in French courts that judges assume an unnecessary callous attitude toward an accused person as a sign that he wishes a favorable verdict, knowing that his severity arouses the pity of the jury.

Auditors in the courtroom are asking themselves if the grim, bitter prosecutor, who baits and badgers Madame Steinheil hour after hour, may not have come to feel the emotion that led Jean Lefebvre to raise his thin Apache voice in a terrible self-denunciation to save the woman.

Is In Despair.

Lefebvre is in despair today over the failure of his attempt to save Madame Steinheil. When he was taken from the courtroom after his dramatic confession, the authorities, who suspected a hoax took him before a magistrate for examination. For several hours he protested that he was the murderer. That he and his companion, disguised as a woman in dress, and his companion in a long robe—had picked the lock of the Steinheil house in the Impasse Ronsin, that they had killed Adolphe Steinheil and Madame Japy; that they then had bound and gagged Madame Steinheil, and escaped.

But the pale youth could not withstand the baiting of the officials, and finally tearfully admitted that his story was false.

Lefebvre, whose real name is René Collard, will be examined by a commission to determine his sanity. If he is found mentally sound he, undoubtedly, will be sentenced to a long term in prison on a charge of hindering the administration of justice.

In his questioning today, de Valles declared that the manager of a Jewish theater had rented two black robes on May 27, two days before the crime was committed. The robes were returned on May 31, the day after the crime. Madame Steinheil has contended that the murderers, two of whom were men, wore such robes.

In answer to a line of questioning tending to establish some motive for the killing other than Madame Steinheil's alleged hatred of her mother and husband, the prisoner said that 6,400 francs were stolen from the house by the murderers.

Noted Prisoner

GUTIERREZ DA LARA,
Arrested As An Anarchist.

FRIENDS OF DE LARA SAY HE IS SOCIALIST

Declare Inspiration of Articles on "Barbarous Mexico" Cause

Arrest.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—Members of the newly formed De Lara Defense League claim that the real reason for the arrest of Gutierrez da Lara on the complaint of the Mexican government is not that he is an anarchist, but because he inspired the series of articles on "Barbarous Mexico" now appearing in a monthly magazine. The league was formed for the purpose of raising money for the defense of De Lara, and large sums have been received. The Mexican government claims the man is an anarchist.

His friends, among whom are numbered Clarence Darrow, Clarence Melly, A. R. Holston, and John Kenneth Turner, say he is a socialist, and has no anarchistic tendencies. Turner is the author of the "Barbarous Mexico" articles, and he went to Mexico at the instigation of De Lara to obtain material for his work.

EXTREME PENALTY FOR WALTER FORD

Justice Gould Gives Negro
Thirty Years—Would Like to Give More.

"The extreme penalty is extremely mild punishment for what this man has done," declared Justice Ashley M. Gould this morning in imposing an aggregate sentence of thirty years in the penitentiary on Walter Ford, the negro who, after being arrested in this city for a brutal assault committed on Florence V. Harvey, a young white girl, near Landover, Md., confessed himself the perpetrator of an attempted felonious assault upon Minnie Wilson, and of the robbery of Miss Minnie Heinrichs in this city.

Attorney John Lasky, of counsel for Ford, advised the court that the man desired to change the plea of not guilty and substitute a confession of his guilt. In passing sentence, Justice Gould declared that he knew much more of Ford's record than he could state in court, and felt that the maximum punishment under the law was too light a penalty for Ford's misdeeds in this and other jurisdictions. Sentences of fifteen years were imposed in either case.

Walter Ford, a relative of Irving Ford, who brutally mistreated and murdered little Elsie Kreglow, was arrested here at the request of the Prince George county (Md.) authorities, after he had waylaid, beaten, and attempted to criminally assault sixteen-year-old Florence Harvey, the daughter of a well-to-do farmer of Landover, Md. Miss Harvey positively identified him as her assailant.

PLAN TO BUILD HOUSES ON OLD GOLF COURSE

Southern Capitalists Who Have Made an Offer for Georgia Avenue Property Are Confident of Converting Site Into Large Residential Section.

While denying the report that the 183-acre tract of unimproved ground, bounded by Georgia avenue, Potomac, the Soldiers' Home, Rock Creek Cemetery, and Brightwood Park, has been sold to North Carolina capitalists, Col. Myron M. Parker, surviving trustee of the syndicate owning the property, today said a deal for its transfer is pending, and it may be closed at any time.

"If the sale is made upon the basis of the consideration which practically has been arrived at," said Colonel Parker, "the land will go for $420,000, instead of for $450,000, as reported."

It was learned today that the land will be divided, in the event of the sale being consummated, to George P. Penny, of High Point, N. C. Mr. Penny, who is at the Raleigh Hotel, expects to leave for his home tonight, where he will at once organize a company of capitalists to develop the property.

"I cannot say now just how many persons will be associated with me in the company," said Mr. Penny, "but there probably will be several of them. We expect to make plans to improve the property at the earliest possible time."

Mr. Penny would not enter into details as to the nature of the improvements contemplated, but declared a large number of dwellings of the moderate-price type probably would be built on the land within the next few months.

J. M. Maupin, a local real estate operator, formerly of North Carolina, is associated with Mr. Penny in the purchase, and will be a heavy holder in the company, it is said. Mr. Maupin largely assisted in working up the deal.

The real estate firm of King, Milburn & Collier also is represented in the deal. The tract of ground is owned by the Marshall Brown syndicate, which is made up of Congressmen and Washington capitalists. It has been known as the home of the Columbia Golf Club. It is partially covered by woods, and is well located for being converted into an attractive residential section. With the exception of the clubhouse recently occupied by the golf club, it is without improvements.
